

The Fairy Tales

And Spiritual Science

Once a Preparation of the Soul for its Future Life

Friday January 3, 2019, 7:30 pm

Waldorf School of Lexington, 739 Massachusetts Ave.

Sponsored by the Anthroposophical Society in Greater Boston

<https://www.anthroposophyboson.org/>

The great fairy tales are told in a powerful, creative language, we've mostly forgotten. If we want to follow the inner movements of fairy tales appropriately, we have to learn to experience vividly their mighty images. This involves concentrated inner work that helps us to follow other spiritual texts, such as the Bible or the works of Rudolf Steiner. The talk gives a number of examples of deeply meaningful images in fairy tales and an insight to a method of working with them.

About the Speaker

Laszlo Böszörményi has been working on exercises of the mediation path since more than forty years. He has been a friend and scholar of Georg Kühlewind for almost thirty years. He lives in Klagenfurt, Austria. He conducts seminars on themes from inner schooling to the fairy tales to Waldorf Kindergarten teaching. In 2017, he retired from a career at the Klagenfurt University as a professor of computer science.

For more information, email Andrew at jandrewlinnell@yahoo.com.